

Home Position for the Anglo concertina

by Jody Kruskal

You can press any button with any finger, so I am often asked by new students, which finger do I use? With some exceptions, you should dedicate these fingers to the buttons indicated. I like to call this "Home Position" because this is where my fingers fall when I pick the instrument up. If you follow this as your default position plan, all the other fingers should fall into place. Are they in home position or away from home? If they are away, they will soon return and so this is a good way to keep track of where you are on the keyboard.
